CORAL REEF REHABILITATION PROJECT

Fringed by an ecosystem of immeasurable beauty, Huvafen Fushi is dedicated to expanding the protection and awareness of the House Reef. In 2006 Huvafen Fushi launched a project to enhance the House Reef and to speed the recovery from the 1998 Indian Ocean Bleaching Event, where unusually warm surface waters damaged countless reefs. Two marine biologists assisted with the project, successfully restoring an ecosystem at the underwater spa through the development of a coral nursery and coral reef rehabilitation project. Huvafen Fushi expanded this project by appointing a team of Resident Marine Biologists to monitor the House Reef and reef fish.
